

To Whom It May Concern:

I have worked closely with Jason Israel who has been a member of NCR's IT services since 1998 and has grown in experience and responsibility during his tenure at NCR.

Jason has excelled in a variety of positions at NCR: desktop support, server support and now networking support.

Along with Jason's normal support duties, he has also been able to be very effective on key major projects. He has assisted many other teams in cost savings, capacity and performance based projects. Some of his recent projects included the migration from a shared media 10mb environment, managing installation and administration of Cisco 6000 based switches, upgrading the site with the newer Cisco 6500 series switches to support the PBX to VoIP migration. He also has assisted in the migration away from individual printers to a centralized Canon printer solution for the large San Diego, CA and El Segundo, CA sites.

Jason Israel should be considered an asset to any origination, with his understanding of the needs of the customer and his proven ability to quickly adapt to changing business environments.
